Paper: Not Too Late: Improving Academic Outcomes Among Adolescents

(1) Every submitted article should state the sources of financial support for the particular research it describes. If none, that fact should be stated.

Financial Support for this research: Abbvie Foundation, Bank of America, Arnold Ventures, Paul M. Angell Foundation, Edna McConnell Clark Foundation, Crown Foundation, Lloyd A. Fry Foundation, Joyce Foundation, Logan Foundation, MacArthur Foundation, Polk Foundation, Pritzker-Pucker Foundation, Smith Richardson Foundation, Spencer Foundation, the Chicago Center for Youth Violence Prevention, EquiTrust, JPAL-North America, the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority, the city of Chicago, grant number 2012-JU-FX-0019 from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, Office of Justice Programs, US Department of Justice, and award number 1P01HD076816 from the Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development of the National Institutes of Health.

(2) Each author of a submitted article should identify each interested party from whom he or she has received significant financial support, summing to at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like. The disclosure requirement also includes in-kind support, such as providing access to data. If the support in question comes with a non-disclosure obligation, that fact should be stated, along with as much information as the obligation permits. If there are no such sources of funds, that fact should be stated explicitly. An “interested” party is any individual, group, or organization that has a financial, ideological, or political stake related to the article.

The research team received access to administrative data from the Chicago Public Schools, the Chicago Police Department, and Saga Education for this work. No funding or financial was received from any of these entities, only data access.

Besides the data access from the above entities, I have no other relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

(3) Each author should disclose any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities. A “relevant” organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.

I declare that I have no paid or unpaid positions with “relevant” organizations that have an interest related to this article.

(4) The disclosures required above apply to any close relative or partner of any author.
Not applicable

(5) Each author must disclose if another party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

The results of this research were shared with the Chicago Public Schools and the Chicago Police Department per provisions of data sharing agreements between these parties and the University of Chicago Crime and Education Lab. The results of this research were also shared with the implementation organization, Saga Education. These organizations did not have the right to either prevent publication or change any of the contents in this report. These reviews were instead to ensure the paper did not inadvertently disclose individually identifiable information or confidential information.

(6) IRB Disclosure: This research was conducted under approval from the University of Chicago's committee on human subjects, IRB13-0691 approved on 6/24/2013.
