

Sari Pekkala Kerr

I wish to thank National Science Foundation, Smith Richardson Foundation and Kauffman Foundation for supporting this research. I have not received any financial or other material support from any interested parties related to this article or topic area, nor have I worked in any unpaid positions in organizations relevant for this article. Unrelated to this article (and not counting as interested parties), I have worked in research consulting role at the Labour Institute for Economic Research in Helsinki (Finland) and for Keystone Strategy in New York. I am married to William R. Kerr (a co-author of this article), and hence his disclosure statement is relevant here too. There are no third parties that have the right the review this article prior to publication / circulation.